

Interpretative Analysis – PhD/Post-doc discussion group

The 'Interpretative Analysis discussion group' is a discussion platform for PhD students and Postdocs, who conduct or will conduct interpretative analyses in their research. It is a setting in which we discuss how we actually do an interpretative analysis. The set-up of the meetings are twofold. In the first hour we discuss some back ground papers about interpretative analysis. In the second hour the members can bring something in, like a draft paper, an interview transcript, presentation etc., which will be discussed together. Besides these meetings we facilitate in organizing and inviting interesting people in this area for a more broader public as well. Meetings are held every 6 weeks for two hours. People who are interested (also from other universities) can get in touch with Susan Boonman-Berson (susan.boonman-berson@wur.nl)
